Spring 2019 Cohort

The ENMU CDIS program welcomed new graduate students to campus. They arrived in January to attend the three-day new student orientation. Coming from all over the United States, they were excited to start classes and begin their graduate school experience!

Spring 2019

The annual Student Research and Creativity Conference is held at ENMU to give undergraduate and graduate students an opportunity to showcase their research and creative projects. These research and creative projects are often the final product of a capstone course offered in each discipline. The student's work can be presented as a professional poster or a creative work display. In addition, students can present a scholarly paper on their research topic or a performance session. These presentations are judged by a group of inter-disciplinary faculty members, with the winners receiving certificates and cash awards. Campus and community members are invited to attend the conference.
